

Ninth Interdisciplinary Conference Communication, Medicine & Ethics

30 June – 2 July 2011, The University of Nottingham, UK

FIRST CALL FOR PAPERS

The Institute of Mental Health is hosting the Ninth Interdisciplinary Conference in relation to Communication, Medicine and Ethics at The University of Nottingham, UK from Thursday 30 June to Saturday 2 July 2011.

Plenary Speakers:

1. Professor Peter Aggleton, Sussex University, UK
2. Professor Eugene Beresin, Harvard University, Boston, USA
3. Professor Celia Roberts, King's College, London, UK

The aim of the conference seeks to bring critical focus to three areas:

Communication, Medicine and Ethics

Reflecting the interdisciplinary work of the Institute of Mental Health, and the multifaceted nature of the conference's theme, we invite the participation of colleagues from both the humanities and from clinical backgrounds who wish to participate in an exploration of health communication. Furthermore, to be genuinely inclusive we encourage presentations arising from completed projects and work that is in progress or of an exploratory nature.

The Institute of Mental Health welcomes abstracts of approximately 250 words in length for twenty-minute papers in English dealing with the themes outlined above. We would also welcome the organization of panels (consisting of three speakers and a moderator) dealing with specific issues related to the overall themes of the conference. Issues to be considered at the conference may include:

Please send your abstracts as a Word attachment with "COMET 2011" in the subject line to comet@institutemh.org.uk by 31st January 2011.
